R. R.: One of the afflictions of an over-stout person is a high abdomen. An excellent exercise for the correction of this is to lie flat on the back and elevate each leg several times alternately, not as high as it will go, but slantwise from the body, which is more of a tax upon the muscles. Another exercise which is good is to stand on tiptoe and elevate the arms, at the same time stretching the body to a tension. Announcement in Made. Charcoal for Complexion

By Lillian Russelt.

The course of sulphur treatment in which zealous persons indulge in hopes of a fair skin must be condemned as unsafe; sulphur poisoning, brought on by the free use of sulphur internally, is disfiguring and difficult to heal. The idea of taking a teaspoon of sulphur three times a day, as some people do, which I have learned from letters received, is enough to turn a physician's hair stray. A teaspoon of sulphur each morning for three mornings and a teaspoon once a week thereafter for one month is as much as the average persons will bear.

Laxatives, if not purgatives, should folidw the third dose, so that all the impurities need not be thrown off by the skin alone.

Charcoal is the safest complexion cure in domestic practice. The first dose of charcoal may be a dessert-spoonful, freshly mixed in water, milk or syrup, taken upon arising as soon Mrs. A. J. W. writes: I cannot with-

Dandelion extract is a standard medicine of old practice and highly esteemed by physicians for its effect on the skin, liver and kidneys.

After its use for a couple of weeks or so friends usually inquire, "What have you been-doing to your skin to make it so fine?" But coarse bread and wheat must go with any treatment to have lasting effects. The parched wheat should not be cooked, but thoroughly ground in chewing, when it will be found a regulating and strengthening food.

It is possible to read "The Trey O' Hearts" in The Times-Dispatch as also to see it in pictures at the Superior Theire Synopsis of preceding chapters: The trey of hearts is the death sign used by Seneca Trine in the private war of vengeance, which, through the agency of his daughter Judith, a woman of volent passions like his own, he wages against Alan Law, son of the man thow dead) who was innocently responsible for the accident which left Trine a helpless cripple for life Alan loves and is loved by Rose Judith's twin and double, but in gil other respects her opposive Judith vows to compass Alan's death, but Alan saves her life under dramatic circumstances, and so unwillingly, whis her love. Thereafter Judith is actuated in turn by the old hatred, the new love, and jealousy of her sister Rose, she becomes allenated from her father through her fallure to carry out his homicidal plans, and because of the aid she has extended that his flight with Rose from the vengeance of Trine through the mountains of Western Arizona. Alan, Rose, Barcus and Judith are pursued relentlessiy by Trine's agonts.

CHAPTER CIV.-RETRIBUTION Supported by sympathetic hands, the quartet staggered into camp, their story, as condensed by Barcus and breathlessly confirmed by Alan, already winning them enthusizstic champions.

And this was very well for them. For they had no more than scated themselves and begun to appreciate what perils they had just escaped, when the rumble of a motor car sounded beyond the shoulder of the hill.

One startled question elicited the in-formation that the cliff road was nothing more nor less than a continuation of the road they had abandoned in the

The approaching car, then, could hardly be any other than that which was freighted with the two men who had for so long sought the death of Alan and any or all who had befriended

Startled by this alarm once more into full command of his flagging faculties, Alan rose and stumbled out into the roadway, taking quick cognizance of such faculties for defense as the camp afforded, and issuing instructions with a voice vibrant with fear, not for his own safety, but for the safety of those whom he loved.

Not far from the point where the road swung from the cliff to thread the camp the hydraulic nozzle was in action, its terrific force of water melting the mountainside away ton by ton.

Toward this Barcus ran at top speed, gaining the man in charge of the nozzle just as the car swung round the head just as the car swung round the bend.

Pausing only long enough to make certain that there could be no mistake—and having this certainty made doubly sure by Jimmy's action in rising doubly sure by Jimmy's action in rising from his seat and firing over the windshield pointblank at Alan as this last stood waiting in the roadway—Barcus and the miner swung the nozzle round until it bore directly on the car.

The power of its stream was such that the car was checked instantly in its tracks; and before the water could have been shut off or the stream diverted, the machine was driven back to the very lip of the cliff and over it completely, taking with it those twain upon whose efforts all the hopes of Seneca Trine of late had been centred.

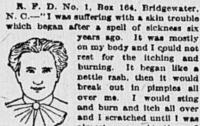

A death that was merciful, in that it was instantaneous, awaited them at the foot of the cliff. Questions and Answers.

which began after a spell of sickness six years ago. It was mostly on my body and I could not rest for the itching and burning. It began like a nettle rash, then it would break out in pimples all and burn and itch all over and I scratched until I was almost raw. At times I could hardly bear anything to rub against the parts that were affected. "I do not know how many remedies, soaps, etc., I tried but none did me any good. Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they seemed to be the very thing that I needed. I only used them four weeks and they completely healed me. I have not been bothered with the trouble since."
